If you are new to owl identification, you might confuse the Great-Horned Owl with the Long-Eared Owl, commonly seen at the Tamarisk Grove Campground. The difference is the Long-Eared Owl's tufts are closer together and it is much smaller than the Great-Horned Owl.

At night, if you hear two Great-Horned Owls hooting (read courting), the call of the female is a slightly higher pitch than the male. The hooting resembles the dots and dashes of Morse Code: HOOT! Hu-hu-hu HOO!
